Emily,

I hope you don't cringe every time you see another email from me come through! I have another couple of database problems for you to check into. Lori Amato at LLPCC has tried to enter the birthing outcome for an existing client that was moved over to the new database. Her baby was born a little over a month ago and the database isn't letting her enter the birthing outcome. As a result, she's not able to enter the EPDS either. Any tips?

Also, PCC has a client with no middle name (she's originally from China) and the database requires a middle initial in order to complete the client intake form. She is married but she didn't take on her husband's last name so they just put his last name initial as her middle initial so they could complete her intake form. Is this ok and if not, what would you recommend, shy of changing the database so that it doesn't require a middle initial be entered, as I'm guessing they won't want to do.

Thanks! Carrie Carrie Hoelscher A2A Program Manager
